

APRIL 2009

We are currently working on many improvements to the ROLLS web site. One addition will be an additional information tab on all products to have images, manuals, data sheets and a new tab for schematics or other important information. This is in process and will be available soon.

MOST IMPROVED PRODUCT

The MM11 is by far the most improved product from last month. We sold 600 pieces on one order with Reflex Marketing. They are to be installed in court rooms in New Jersey.

Discontinue.....

We tried to discontinue the ROLLS RPQ160 and we were successful in doing so for about six months. After having orders come in about once a week and explaining to everyone that the unit was discontinued we are finally giving in to orders and are once again going to build the RPQ160. We are going to redesign it so we are kind of getting our way. The new design will be a standard rack space as before but will have a smaller depth. It will also have a different chassis design, the new version will be similar to the RM74 chassis. It will run off a PS12 external power supply to make the unit quieter. The new version of the RPQ160 will be available in August. I guess it doesn't make a lot of sense to discontinue a product that people still want to buy?

This is a pic. of the old RPQ160. The new one will look nothing like this. It is here to take up space in the news letter.

Rolls is doing very well in the current financial down turn, but you might see some companies change their logo's due to the poor state of the economy.
